

TOBI: So when did you know?

SHEILA: I hate that question. I was born this way. When did you know? I mean granted it didn't really occur to me to probably like 7th or 8th grade, you know, when I started really exploring and getting into it?

TOBI: I mean, I dabbled in college.

SHEILA: I think we all do I mean it was it was the eighties right that's what you did. You know really the truth is that you're born this way. And it there's nothing wrong with a little dabbling. a little experimentation.

TOBI: It's a spectrum.

SHEILA: Exactly.

TOBI: It's a spectrum

SHEILA: There's something for everyone out there, and I think once you know your truth, you should be able to live it openly. Look, I can say I, Sheila Redling, SG Redling is a proud and unapologetic pantsler.

TOBI: And I, Tobi Doyle, am a plotter, a hybrid like I do leave a little bit...

SHEILA: Sure like a free weekend, leave a little something funny, you know the experimentation.

TOBI: Right.

SHEILA: What is your writing orientation?
